THE CASE

Our online store makes most of its revenue through checkout. Last month checkout went down for 25 minutes during a campaign, and Black Friday is in six weeks with up to 3 times normal traffic. Leadership wants to know whether we're ready, what it will cost to be ready, and how we'll know in real time if something breaks.

What this role protects: Availability customers feel · Revenue protected on peak days · Cloud cost

1 · UNDERSTAND THE BUSINESS

1 Tell me about a system you kept running that made money directly. How did you find out what an hour of downtime cost the business?

Dig deeper: Who gave you that number, and how did it change your priorities?
Strong answer: Knows revenue per minute or a proxy, got it from finance or product, and used it to prioritize.

5 Leadership gives you budget for one thing before Black Friday: more capacity, a load test or better alerts. Which one and why?

Dig deeper: What do we lose with the options you didn't choose?
Strong answer: Compares cost against revenue at risk per hour; picks with data; names what stays uncovered.
